

Ukraine Holodomor Genocide

Mr. Speaker,

Today we remember Ukraine's Holodomor – truly genocide, a crime against humanity that the world had chosen to forget.

More than seven million souls perished in Ukraine in a forced famine created by Stalin's despotic 1930s regime.

This annihilation was not caused by the ravages of nature, nor the scourge of pestilence, nor by the obliteration of war, but by the hand of a dictator consumed with hatred.

Why mankind wreaks death and destruction on its own in such unimaginable numbers might not even have the understanding of it by the Almighty in the Hereafter.

The millions of Ukrainians, starved to death in the "Breadbasket of Europe," are being remembered in ceremonies across Canada and around the world.

We remember today the victims of the Holodomor, of the dark side of humanity, and by remembering we help the world guard against those who would repeat such genocide.

Standing Order
31 – 127

November 26, 2009

Peter Goldring

Member of Parliament
Edmonton East

